

NexaMart Pricing Policy

Purpose

This fictional pricing policy describes how selling prices should be managed.

Base price

Products should normally be sold at the approved catalog price stored in the product master.

Promotional pricing

Temporary promotional prices must have an approved campaign reference and validity period.

Price changes

Permanent price changes require Commercial and Finance approval.

Margin protection

Sales teams should consider product cost and minimum margin requirements before approving exceptional prices.

Audit trail

All exceptional pricing decisions must be traceable to an approved quotation, campaign, or management authorization.
